Flemings Pool Pedestrian Access design – continue the conversation

Council is calling for a second round of community feedback on the amended concept design for the Flemings Pool pedestrian access at Millers Road in Altona.

An update

We have been working hard on the Flemings Pool design in response to the community feedback.

Additionally, we have completed level surveys and geotechnical assessments to better inform the concept designs developed. Geotechnical assessments identify what is below the surface – and in this instance they have identified where we will find sand and where we will find rock. These findings have an impact on where we can build and how we build.

As a result of these findings and the feedback received via phone, email and in person at our community drop in session we have amended the design.

We are working in a space that has incredible value to our community and has a long history that many people are aware of and relate to. We are also working in a space that has increasing popularity and increasing demands from different user groups. We must also ensure that any new infrastructure is built to current standards and requirements.

The new design aims to protect the history of the pool and enhance the area to meet the demands for current and future users.

You will be able to view the latest design for the pedestrian access to Flemings Pool <https://participate.hobsonsbay.vic.gov.au/flemingspool> from Saturday 10 November.
